

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The apparatus includes a trackball with variable potentiometers for an audio mixer. The trackball can rotate with at least two degrees of freedom, so that rotation in the first direction as detected by a first variable potentiometer controls a first variable, such as regeneration of an audio effect and rotation in the second direction as detected by a second variable potentiometer controls a second variable, such as speed of the audio effect.

SECRET